

Lindsay Galbraith
Submissions Manager

“

There are so many exciting and interesting projects across the construction industry, and every day is different – there is something new to learn each day.

There are lots of opportunities across the industry and you can use your skills to work on something that you enjoy – whether that is on-site or in the office; using your hands or working in a more digital environment.

Explore the opportunities that are out there – I am sure most people will find something that they would be good at and enjoy doing.

”